

KPMG Audit Job Simulation, Forage

I completed a virtual audit job simulation through KPMG's Forage program based on the audit of Ashbourne Industries. The project focused on accounts receivable and involved reviewing financial information, working with accounts receivable confirmation data, and considering the results of customer responses. I worked with a large accounts receivable balance and analyzed confirmation results to understand what the information could indicate about the account. The experience gave me an opportunity to apply concepts from my auditing coursework to a more realistic business situation rather than only working through textbook examples. It also helped me gain a better understanding of how auditors examine evidence and use their findings when evaluating financial information.
